

STEELE, SCOTT: Basketball; Intramurals; Spanish Club; Academic Excellence

STEFFEN, MARK: Intramurals; Track, Captain; Lettermen's Club; Spanish Club; TARS; Semester Honor Roll

STEVENS, EARBY: Intramurals; Track

STEVENSON, GARY: Intramurals; Tennis; Lettermen's Club; Spanish Club; Semester Honor Roll

STICK, DIANE: Intramurals; FBLA, Vice-President; GRA; Pep Club; Student Council; Tri-Y; a Cappella; Madrigal

STICKNEY, JOSETTE

In learning to live with yourself, you must also learn to get along with others. As a senior, you have probably developed close friendships through common interests. These friendships are at a peak in the senior year when you have finally overcome barriers together in reaching the top. Through group activities, talking seriously with friends, and laughing together over past experiences, you get an insight into the feelings of others and understand them better. Your friends play an important part in molding you. If you are uncertain about a subject, your friends may have feelings on it that you find you agree with.

Your friends are a vital part of high school life because you share many beliefs with them.

Besides the close friendships within the class, there is the broad friendship of the senior class as a whole. There is a pride and spirit between class members who have overcome the harassing they took as sophomores and who have climbed to the top on the same rung of the ladder. As the graduating seniors pursue their goals as adults, the lasting friendships gained will always promote a feeling of unity of the Class of '68.

STOCK, CAROLYN: Intramurals; Spanish Club; a Cappella; Div. I State Contest; Madrigal

STOFFERS, PAMILA: Intramurals; DECA, Treasurer; GRA; Spanish Club

STOKKE, CHERYL: GRA; Paramedical Club

